sorry.

I have q's to Amber Bineau at JAG as well.
I am asking to interview DDCS and DMP about their failures.
I'd also like to know how any of these officers can continue in their important legal roles if they cannot follow the law.
In the case of DDCS and DMP, the obligation is in the QROs. Who will investigate that? who will decide whether to charge them for failing to perform the duty? will it be the JAG? but how could he, as he himself is in violation of the law for the exact same failure?

Dear

Not only has the JAG not reported to the Minister in three years (apparently in violation of the National Defence Act) but neither the director of military prosecutions nor the director of defense counsel services -- both of whom are ministerial appointees -- have filed their annual reports to the JAG as mandated by the Queen's Regulations and Orders.

In each case, it appears these officers have broken military law in that they each Negligently Performed A Military Duty Imposed On Him.

Does the minister still have confidence in the men his office appointed to maintain and run the system of military justice in Canada?

With the top three superintendents of military justice now in apparent violation of the law, who will investigate them? How can they be held to account? How can they possibly be asked to hold others to account?

Mike,

I just thought that I would share our discussion with the larger group since we may touch on this this afternoon.

Del,

Thanks for your comments. You have raised some good points for discussion.

The WJLM meeting will be tomorrow afternoon (Tue). I wasn't entirely clear from your remark about not being able to make it this afternoon whether you would in fact be there tomorrow? Obviously, DDCS input is key to making any collective decisions on this plan.

Thanks.

MG

Mike,

We are scrambling on a number of things here and I will not be able to make it to the meeting this afternoon. However, here are some things to think about in relation to the annual report discussion.

1. Having common time-lines is good and provides us with a common understanding of when things need to be done. I appreciate that.

I trust that these comment are helpful.
